CLASS ACTION LAWSUIT TO BE LAUNCHED TODAY AGAINST TORONTO HYDRO-ELECTRIC SYSTEM LTD. AND DELTERA CONSTRUCTION LIMITED AS A RESULT OF THE EXPLOSION AT 3650 KINGSTON ROAD, TORONTO

TORONTO (March 27, 2009) – A class action will be commenced today on behalf of all residents and condominium owners of 3650 Kingston Road, Toronto as a result of the March 19, 2009 explosion on the premises.

Residents of 3650 Kingston Road were evacuated in the middle of the night on March 19, 2009, and have been unable to return. They have been advised that they cannot return for at least four weeks. The plaintiffs allege that the defendants are liable for causing the explosion.

The plaintiffs are represented by Ted Charney of Falconer Charney LLP, and Sharon Strosberg of Sutts, Strosberg LLP.

Mr. Charney stated “Residents of 3650 Kingston Road remain displaced from their homes due to the explosion. This lawsuit is intended to compensate the class members for damage to their units and the cost incurred for additional living expenses while they remain displaced.”

Ms. Strosberg stated “One thing is clear. The class members are innocent people who are suffering as a result of the acts or omissions of someone else. We are calling upon the insurers for the defendants to step up and pay the costs of alternate accommodations so they are not forced to stay in homeless shelters.”

Sutts, Strosberg LLP is one of Canada’s leading class action law firms. Along with Falconer Charney LLP, they are currently prosecuting a class action on behalf of the residents of 2 Secord Avenue as a result of the explosion on July 20, 2008. They are also co-counsel in the class action against Sunrise Propane Energy Group as a result of the propane explosion on Murray Road on August 10, 2008.
